About The Wahls Protocol Health Professional Certification & Post-Conference Session on June 23:

The Wahls Protocol Health Professional Certification is available to eligible practitioners, and a live 3-hour case study workshop, as part of this certification is exclusively available to NCIMS Members who are attending this year's conference in Asheville. For more information on the specifics of this certification, please click here. All of the modules may be completed online at your own pace before, after, or the weekend of the NCIMS conference. It is recommended to complete at least some of the modules in advance.

Dr. Wahls' inspiring story and groundbreaking research has already changed the way millions of people think about autoimmune disease, intensive nutrition—and kale. Over the last several years, Dr. Wahls has received countless requests for further training and one-on-one lessons in how to incorporate her Protocol into health, wellness, and medical practices across the world.

The cost of this certification is normally $2,999 with a non-refundable application fee of $97. The rate for NCIMS Members who are attending the Southeast Regional Integrative Medical Conference will be a total of $2,699 (for the first five members to sign up) or $2,799. NCIMS Member price includes the application fee. To register, you must email NCIMS at info@ncims.com to verify your membership standing. Once verified, you will receive a code to use to register for this session at <https://terrywahls.com/ncims>. This link must be used to register for this session.
